[rcog2017.com]
The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG) and the University of Cape Town invite you to participate at the RCOG World Congress 2017, to be held on 20 – 22 March 2017 at the Cape Town International Convention Centre (CTICC), Cape Town, South Africa. The CTICC a modern, purpose-built congress centre, combining state-of-the art technology and cutting edge design. It is an ideal venue for our World Congress to take place.

In an exciting development for 2017 the Congress will also incorporate the International Society of Ultrasound in O&G (ISUOG) international symposium and the whole event is being organised in partnership with the South African Society of O&G (SASOG), the African Federation of O&G and the International Society of Obstetric Medicine (ISOM).

These societies and their members will be brought together under one roof making the Congress the greatest event this decade on the African continent for specialists in obstetrics and gynaecology.

It is the landmark event on the calendar for clinicians practicing in obstetrics and gynaecology and will provide a unique opportunity for all those participating to learn of the latest developments in what is increasingly a rapidly changing and expanding field. The RCOG now has over 16,000 members worldwide and we are confident that a great many will attend the conference alongside colleagues from many other O&G societies throughout Africa and the rest of the world.

I hope that you will consider supporting this unique and prestigious international Congress and we look forward to seeing you in Cape Town in March 2017.

Dr David Richmond
President
Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists

Professor Lynette Denny
Professor in Obstetrics and Gynaecology
University of Cape Town
ABOUT THE HOSTS

Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG)

The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG) works to improve health care for women everywhere, by setting standards for clinical practice, providing doctors with training and lifelong learning, and advocating for women’s health care worldwide.

To fulfil this role, the RCOG:

... Improves and maintains proper standards in the practice of obstetrics and gynaecology for the benefit of the public
... Produces evidence-based guidelines for appropriate practice and procedures
... Provides a range of educational tools in all aspects of obstetrics and gynaecology
... Promotes study and research into obstetrics and gynaecology and publishes the results
... Conducts examinations for doctors wishing to specialise
... Maintains a register of its Fellows and Members and those undertaking its continuing professional development programme
... Reviews the suitability of training programmes for membership, specialist registration and subspecialties
... Advises the Government and other public bodies on matters of health care relating to the specialty
... Provides statements and publishes reports on issues of public importance relevant to obstetrics and gynaecology
... Organises postgraduate and scientific meetings, congresses and courses in the UK and globally
... Works in partnership with other agencies to increase awareness of and contribute to the improvement of sexual and reproductive health care worldwide, in particular to reduce maternal and neonatal mortality and morbidity

Today, there are over 13,000 Fellows and Members and 3,000 registered Trainees and Associates of the RCOG based in over 100 countries.

The RCOG is a registered charity in the United Kingdom 213280
ABOUT THE HOSTS

University of Cape Town (UCT)

The Department of Obstetrics & Gynaecology in the Faculty of Health Sciences at the University of Cape Town (UCT) boasts a proud history of innovation. Established in 1920, it is the oldest such department in the country and is currently headed by Professor Lynette Denny.

The first South African obstetric ultrasound unit was created by the Department in 1970. This unit continues to function as a multi-disciplinary fetal medicine unit.

The first gynaecological endocrine clinic was established by the Department in 1972 and developed into the Reproductive Medicine Unit. The first sperm bank in South Africa was established at Groote Schuur Hospital in 1981. The Reproductive Medicine Unit remains the only South African university-based service dedicated to all aspects of reproductive medicine that supplies services to patients accessing the Public Health system.

In 1980 the department established the first South African Community Obstetric Service (known as the Peninsula Maternal and Neonatal Service), setting the national and international benchmark for all primary healthcare medicine.

The department runs a well-established gynaecological oncology service. This is the first unit in South Africa to be recognised by the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists in the United Kingdom as a sub-speciality training unit.

The department developed the first clinic to provide care to postmenopausal women. At the time, this service was internationally unique and set the standard for many dedicated clinics that now provide similar services.

The department developed the first dedicated obstetric intensive care service in 1989. This remains the only unit of its kind in Africa and has attracted postgraduate students from many countries.

International Society of Ultrasound in O&G (ISUOG)

The International Society of Ultrasound in O&G (ISUOG) is a professional membership association and charity that aims to improve women’s healthcare services through the provision and broad dissemination of the highest quality education and research information around ultrasound in obstetrics and gynaecology.

With 13,500 members in 128 countries, ISUOG are the leading society in this niche medical speciality.
INVEST IN THE RCOG WORLD CONGRESS

The RCOG World Congress is one of the largest international events in obstetrics and gynaecology

Incorporating the ISUOG International Symposium for the first time

Delegates and Speakers are leaders in the field of obstetrics and gynaecology - O&G

An unmissable opportunity to increase your company profile and product and reach your target audience

An exciting programme encompassing a wide range of topics that will attract a broad spectrum of delegates

Who will attend?

The last three RCOG World Congresses held in Liverpool, in 2013, Hyderabad, in 2014 and Brisbane in 2015 have sold out ahead of time, with 2,138 delegates participating from over 40 countries at our 2015 Brisbane event.

Moreover, the 2016 event in Birmingham UK has already received 2,000 abstracts ahead of the event.

The Organising Committee is confident that at least 1,500 delegates from Africa, the United Kingdom, the Asia Pacific region and other countries throughout the world will be present at the 2015 Joint Congress.

VENUE

RCOG 2017 will be held at the Cape Town International Convention Centre, (CTICC) which has been voted ‘Best Convention Centre in Africa’ for the 10th year.

Located in the hub of the city’s beautiful northern foreshore, the Cape Town International Convention Centre (CTICC) is a cosmopolitan showcase where ideas and cultures from around the globe are able to meet and mingle against the stunning backdrop of Table Mountain. World-class standards and venue specifications mean that the CTICC can not only meet our Congress expectation, but will also ensure that the experience as a whole is an unforgettable one.

Two auditoria with superb acoustics, top-of-the-range technology, and ergonomically designed seats featuring writing tablets, provide ideal venues for large formal gatherings, lectures, awards evenings or even theatre productions. Spacious and sub-divisible, meeting rooms of varying sizes, each accommodating up to 330 delegates, can be set up to suit a variety of functions or presentations.
